PEOPLE

DEDICATION

This yearbook is dedicated to Wanda Walter, Alsea School's indispensable person. She started working for the school in 1962, and a few years ago she became the deputy clerk.

Her presence brightens the office, but her jobs aren't the glamorous ones; she keeps the school accounts, orders and distributes supplies, repairs temperamental machines and supervises the student body treasurer, to name a few. At school board meetings, she makes sure everyone has a cup of coffee, takes attendance and keeps the minutes. She also lends her support to most school functions. Her skill and knowledge keep the school business in order.

Wanda almost always has the answer, and if she doesn't, she will find out. Teachers and staff find her expertise invaluable in helping them perform their jobs better.

Everyone wonders how Alsea School ever managed before Wanda came.

SENIORS

The seniors didn't make any monumental changes in school life. They did get the pop machine back to raise money for their senior trip.

HOMECOMING

Participation was excellent during Spirit Week. Classes 7-12 competed against each other for the grand prize of a day long field trip to the place of their choice. Points were gained for class performance during the week.

A new theme each day challenged students to find appropriate dress. Crazy hats, American heroes, old timers, scuds and loyal blue and white Wolverines all made their appearance. Pep assemblies each day featured contests: orange in the neck race, pie-eating, toilet paper race, cheering contest.

The Powder Puff football game was held Wednesday in a downpour. Thursday, students were excused early to build the bonfire. That evening the fire was lit and the Homecoming Queen, Carol Sapp, and her court were presented.

On Friday, the grand prize was presented to the 7th graders and juniors, who tied. The football team scored a victory, and the day ended with Homecoming Dinner.

Spirit Week festivities ended at the dance Saturday night. "Night Song" provided the music.

JUNIORS

The juniors had a successful year; the concessions helped give them a sizable account for the Jr.-Sr. banquet and prom and next year's senior trip. The juniors also won the Spirit Week contest and took a day long skiing trip to Mt. Hood.

SOPHOMORES

This year's sophomores sponsored the Sweetheart's Ball, had bake sales, sold ice cream, decorated the Christmas tree and served at the Junior-Senior Banquet.

Debbie Stuverud was president; vice president, Stephen Carpenter; secretary/treasurer, Debbie Bowen; and Vickie Riley, sergeant at arms. Class representative was Tami Jo Hendrix. Jim Schmidt was class adviser.

STUDENT COUNCIL

Student Council coordinated many activities. They set up and ran Homecoming activities. Part of these activities was a Spirit Week competition. Grades 7-12 competed for points to win a day long field trip to the place of their choice.

Student Council officers were: President Tim Pearson, Vice President Jim Walter, Secretary Carol Sapp, Treasurer Debbie Bowen, Sgt.-at-Arms Doug Bowen, and Publicity Manager Tina Webb. Jim Mullenix served as adviser.

HONOR SOCIETY

The honor society had two main moneymaking projects to earn money for the bleachers on the football field.

In October they sponsored a Halloween Carnival. Not only did the club earn $100, they provided a service for the community by giving the kids something to do on Halloween. They also put on the annual Hootenany which followed the circus theme. They made $120.

Carol Sapp was president this year and directed both projects. Patsy Jones is the group's adviser.

NINETEEN EIGHTY

SPORTS

FOOTBALL

The varsity football team had a year of ups and downs. They lost three games by a total of ten points. The team had a good year offensively, scoring 220 points and rolling up 2,503 yards total offense. The offense averaged 31 points a game and the defense allowed only 16 points a game. Opponents gained only 1,477 yards total offense. Steve Campbell led the team in scoring with 70 points, and Bugs Bowen led the team in total offense with 1,119 total yards.

VOLLEYBALL

In summing up the year, Coach Schmidt said, "There are no outstanding players; all the team played well and improved immensely." He was very pleased with the season considering the team got off to a slow start and was inexperienced. The varsity had five wins and nine losses. The JV's had two wins and four losses. The varsity took second in the Casco League Tournament.

VARSITY BASKETBALL

The boys' varsity team had a very successful year; they placed second in the state tournament. An Alsea team has not been to state since 1974.

Second in their division of the league with an 8-2 record, Alsea was the second place seed in the district tournament. They defeated Falls City the first night 60-46 and Detroit the second night 55-53. At the state tourney in Baker they defeated Ione the first night 50-39, but lost to Powder Valley the second night 69-60.

The team's overall record was 22-4. Craig "Shorty" Bowen was leading scorer with 389. Doug "Bugs" Bowen had the most steals-88 and the most assists-125, and Rhandy Van Volkenburg was leading rebounder with 225.

JV BASKETBALL

"The JV's showed a lot of growth this year. We started out disorganized, and got it together as a team unit toward the middle of the season. This year's team has a lot to offer the varsity basketball team next year," said Coach Shoshin.

The JV's had a record of 11 wins and 11 losses. The team worked well together; there was no dissension, and all members displayed good sportsmanship. The outlook for next year is good because there is a lot of potential in this year's freshmen, who didn't get to play much this year.

The most valuable player was David Free with 227 points. He was also the team captain and floor leader. Steve Free was the most improved player. The player with the most rebounds was Keith Lee-289. Austin Irwin had the most steals - 43. Paul Pearson got the most assists; he averaged 3.7 points per game.

GIRLS' BASKETBALL

"This year's girls' basketball team did not do well, but next year we'll be better," said Coach Westlund.

Next year Coach Westlund plans to strive for more discipline and better conditioning. She thinks this will mean more wins.

The strong point of this year's team was the improvement of the younger girls. The weakest point was lack of players.

A desire to improve and the experience from this year should mean a more successful 1980-81 season.

Michelle Woosley was high scorer for the season with 141 points; Jana Weist followed with 103. In rebounds Gina Hendrix led with 106; Jana Weist had 97. Michelle Woosley had 59 steals, and Debbie Bowen had 37.

WRESTLING

Coach Hagler said, "The team had enough experience this year that other teams noticed us. We were invited to participate in more tournaments."

Alsea hosted the District Wrestling Tournament in February. Dave Hall qualified and went to the state meet.

Their record was 33 wins-29 losses. The team also scored more in the district meet than they did last year. This year they scored 53; last year their score was 32.

TRACK

Coach Shoshin felt the team had a "really super" year. Alsea won the League Invitational Meet at Harrisburg both boys and girls. Ninth place at district put them at the top of our league.

Juniors, Shorty Bowen and Steve Campbell, qualified for state in the shot putt and long jump. They did not place at state, but gained experience they feel will be helpful next year.

Above: Shorty Bowen putts the shot. Below: Stephen Carpenter heads for the home stretch. Beside: Gina Hendrix takes off in the long jump.

CHEERLEADERS

The cheerleaders went to cheerleading clinics in Albany and Eugene to get cheering ideas, tips and routines. They also had two bake sales and two sock hops for money raising projects.

Alsea's varsity cheerleaders were: Captain Kathy Wilson, Sherri Borton and Debbie Bowen. Junior varsity cheerleaders were: Captain Wendie Riley and Tami Jo Hendrix. This year's mascot was Vickie Riley, but she had to resign due to an injury. Pam Parady served as their adviser.

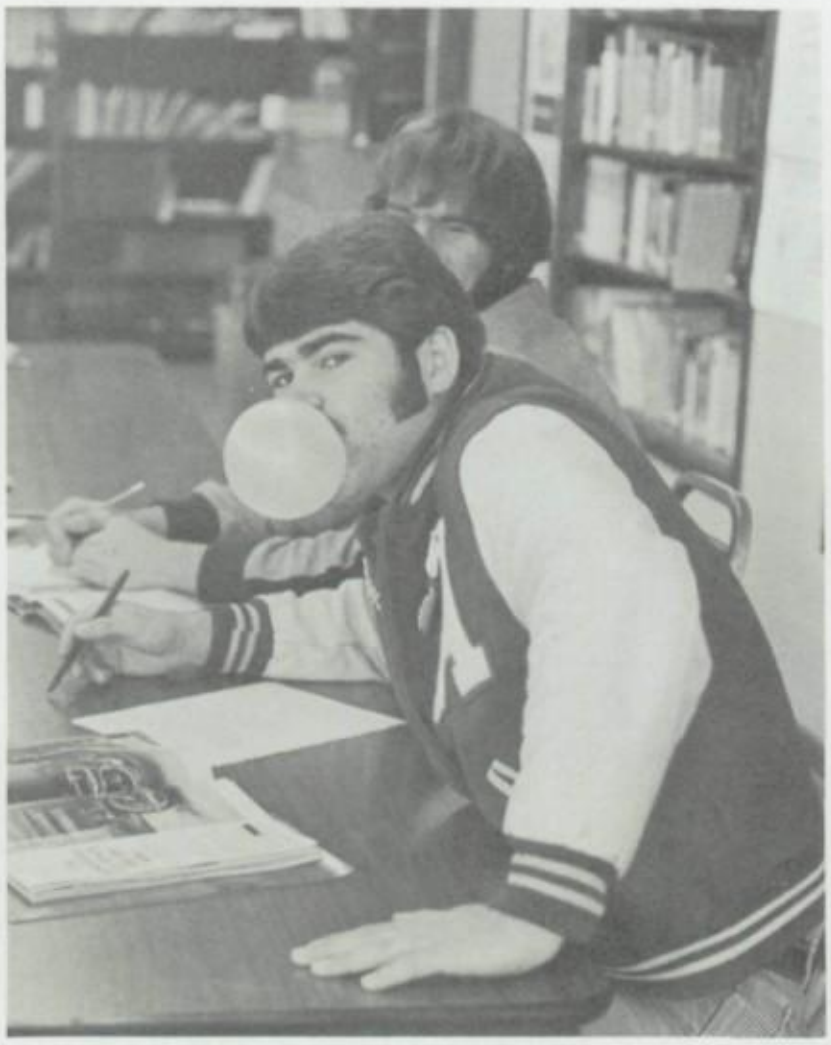
ACADEMICS

ENGLISH



Above: Rex Hendrix gets caught blowing a bubble when he's supposed to be working on a magazine report in 11th grade English. Beside: English teachers: Judy Juntunen, Jim Schmidt, Patsy Jones, and Pam Parady.

Judy Juntunen taught Advanced English 11/12 and 10th grade English. Spelling, vocabulary, literature, and competencies were emphasized.

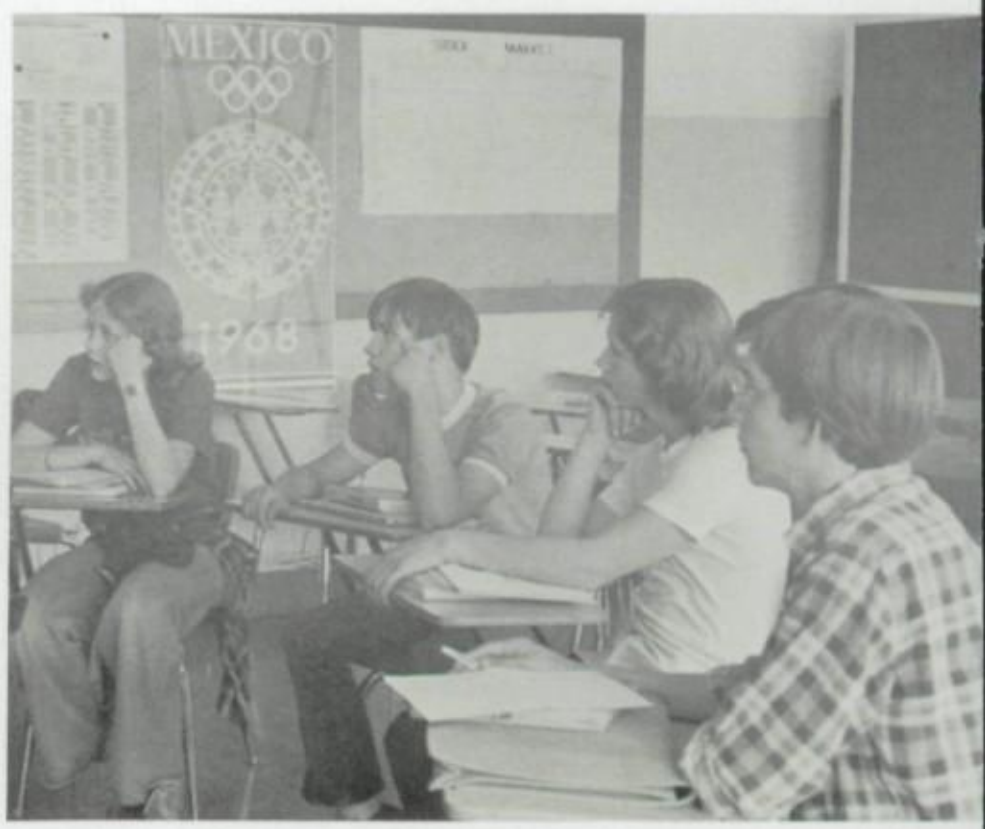
Competencies and helping students in their weak areas was stressed in Pam Parady's 12th grade English class. Patsy Jones' 11th grade English class worked on competencies, other units included literature and the media. Mrs. Jones also taught Kingfisher which produced another issue of the magazine, and readied another for publication.

Jim Schmidt was the 9th grade English teacher. In addition to units like capitalization and punctuation, outlining, the origins of words, the class worked on passing their speech competencies.

SPANISH

Above: Miss Lamb reads a tale in Spanish that the students have heard before, "Little Red Ridinghood." Beside: Spanish students, Debbie Stuverud, Stephen Carpenter, Danny Vollendroff and Ben Paul, listen attentively to Miss Lamb.

Spanish was offered again this year when Jean Lamb agreed to teach it. In addition to academic work, at Christmas the class studied Christmas customs in Mexico, made mini-piñatas and metal Christmas ornaments.



SPEECH AND DRAMA

The speech and drama class put on one major production, a melodrama, "The Poor of Alsea." They also did "Disco-locks and the Three Boogie Bears" for the Hootenany. They also spent time learning good speech techniques and doing several speeches. Jim Schmidt taught the class while Beth Doughman was on leave of absence.

Seniors, under the direction of Pam Parady, staged a short comedy, "The Cleanest Town in the West," to raise money for their senior trip.

JOURNALISM

Journalism class worked on the annual and the Tin Hat Times. Major events for the year was the annual signing party, a workshop sponsored by American Yearbook, and the advertising campaign to help finance the yearbook. Kelly Pellett served as editor for the last two issues of the THT; she also was chosen outstanding journalism student. Mrs. Juntunen was the journalism teacher.

PHOTOGRAPHY

Aside from learning how to use a camera, and basic techniques in print developing, the photography class did solarizing, postermaking, and matching a picture with a poem. Some of their work was displayed in the library, Jim Mullenix taught the class which included five students: Tina Webb, Kathy Wilson, Tami Jo Hendrix, Rhandy Van Volkenburg, and Bill Tapp.

P.E. AND HEALTH

Classes in P.E. this year went through the traditional games, but the new game was Norwegian baseball. Vince Drago and Pam Parady taught the 11/12 coed P.E. class while Mr. Drago and Nancy Westlund had the 9/10 coed P.E. class.

Mr. Drago also taught 10th grade health.

BUSINESS LAB

Mr. Hagler taught business lab and typing. He included shorthand, bookkeeping, data processing, business math, business machines, typing skills, and office procedures in his business lab class.

CAREER ED

Three teachers shared the career ed. class. Students rotated every 12 weeks. Mr. Hagler directed office skills and job application; Mr. Atwood had students work in the shop and learn pruning and grafting. Mrs. Westlund included cooking, child care, and textiles in her section.

LIBRARY

It was a busy year for the library. Many books had to be catalogued including the Cecil Hayden Collection. Mr. Hayden donated many books to the Alsea School library.

High school classes used the library on a regular basis for research and study. Mrs. Jones worked with both secondary and elementary students. Students worked on a variety of projects including mime, slide tape shows, puppet making, video tape projects, and book making.

MATH & SCIENCE

Science teachers this year were Jerry Phelps who taught biology and advanced biology, Peter Shoshin who also taught biology, and Ron Nicholson who taught chemistry.

Math teachers included Mr. Nicholson, Mr. Shoshin, and Jim Hagler. This year the math classes were all taught during one period to allow for flexibility in student scheduling.

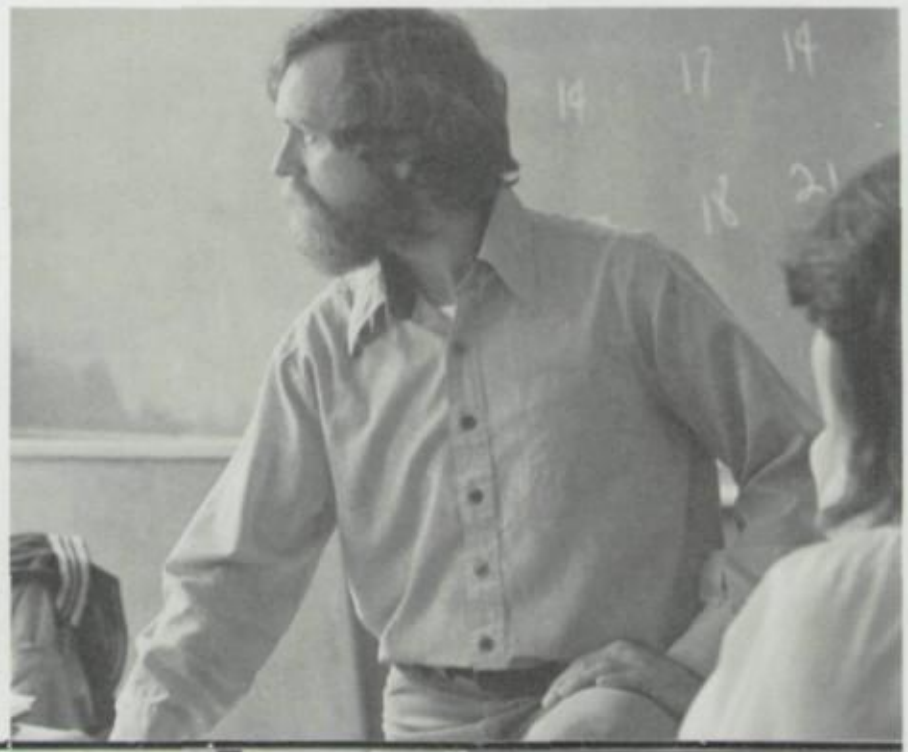
ECOLOGY

Ecology, a new class, was taught by Peter Shoshin. They studied food chains, identifying plants and insects, and practical things like planning a garden.

The highlight of the year was a four day field trip to an area near Grants Pass to study a different ecological system. In addition to studying the environment, the class hiked, swam, and panned for gold.



Above: Matt Webb, Steve Free, and James Farrington plan the ecology field trip. Beside: Mr. Shoshin listens to suggestions.

D.O.

The diversified occupations class not only studied career opportunities, they also did projects for and around the school. They put next year's calendar together, repainted the sign on Vernon Field, and dug holes for benches that the construction class built.

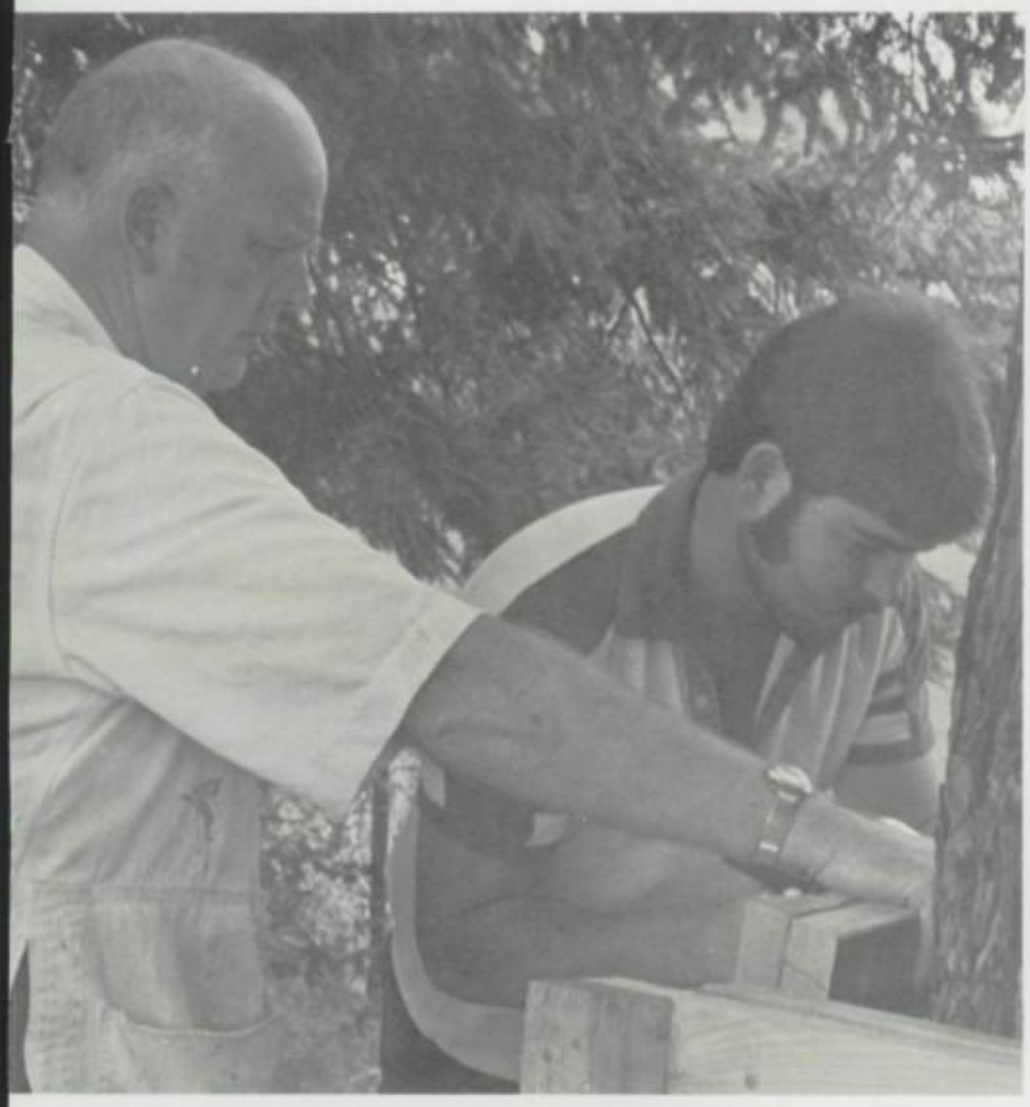
INDUSTRIAL ARTS

Mel Atwood taught industrial arts. His classes did several projects. In the spring the power mechanics class repaired lawn mowers. The construction class built shelves for the publications room and benches for outside.



Above: Mr. Atwood and Rex Hendrix put the finishing touches on a bench. Beside: Shorty Bowen, Rex Hendrix, and Dave Hall work on the benches.

HOME ECONOMICS

Nancy Westlund's home ec. classes worked on a number of projects this year. They included canning, freezing, crocheting, knitting, and sewing.

The advanced home ec. class served a Thanksgiving dinner to the faculty and studied foreign foods.

Above: Mrs. Westlund scrapes a bowl. Beside: Sandy Hildebrand and Brenda Lovett work on their sewing projects.

SOCIAL STUDIES

Modern problems students did research on the environment and criminal justice under the direction of their teacher, Jim Mullenix. Mr. Mullenix also taught the U.S. History class for juniors.

The state and local government class sponsored an interesting candidates' night for those running for county commissioner.

The freshman geography class studied how physical features affect world cultures. They also did plaster of paris relief maps of Oregon. Vince Drago taught both classes.

BANQUET & PROM

The Junior-Senior Banquet was held May 1st at 6:30 p.m. in the gym. Juniors decorated the stage and tables with spring flowers while the junior mothers prepared a sumptuous dinner. The program included the senior wills and prophecy, and certificates for each senior to point out something for which they will be remembered.

Jim France and Louan Michael ruled the Jr.-Sr. Prom, May 3rd. Juniors created a forest scene to carry out their theme, "Enchanted Forest." Swampgrass played and Carol Sapp made a guest appearance with the band.

GRADUATION

Graduation was held May 28. Ed Humble, superintendent, presented the senior class while Hank Schroeder, chairman of the school board handed out the diplomas. Tim Pearson, valedictorian, and John Barclay, salutatorian, gave speeches. Other seniors who participated in the ceremony were Jeff Woosley, who led the flag salute; Dave Hall, who gave the welcome; Sherri Borton, who gave the invocation; and Cathy Schreiber, who led the benediction.

Jim Mullenix presented awards and scholarships to Tim Pearson, Denny Lee, and John Barclay. Tim was named an Oregon Scholar, an honor reserved for the highest rated Oregon seniors.

Baccalaureate was held the evening before graduation. David Kinman, minister of the Methodist Church in Philomath was the speaker. Claudia Hendrix, a member of the graduating class sang at both ceremonies.

Graduation climaxed an exciting two weeks for seniors which included their senior trip to Sun River Lodge where they skied, played golf, went horsebackriding, hiked, and played tennis; awards night, and baccalaureate.
